The Bell Memorial gaies were offcially opened to-day, but infortunateity beavy min marred he service at the entrance to the sales. The opening was adjourned to the Protestant Hall and a record crowd packed the hall. Every preparation was made for the opening of the gates at the Oval. Plaga were draped around the gates and hung from the trees nearby, but the storm which worked across from the north-eastern quarter prevented any ceremony at the gates.

Among the large gathering at the Hail was another friend of the late Mr. Bell, he was Inspector Christian of Orange, and late of Dubbo her. Beil, ne was inspector Christian of Orange, and late of Dubbo. On opening the service the Rev. Charles Yullie, who presided called on those present to sing one of Mr Bell's favorite hymns "Lead Kindly Light." The Citizens Band accompanied the gathering.

Rev. Yuille said it was the greatest pleasure he could expect to take part in this Memorial service as he knew Mr. Bell was a man respected and had only been associated with him for a short period prior to his death he knew from the work this citizen left behind him that Dubbo had lost one of its best townsmen. Since in Dubbo, he had learned much of the great work which the late Mr Bell had done in the direction of supporting his town and he thought the sporting bodies were to be congratulated on the effort they had made to keep this gentleman's memory dear

After Rev. Yuille had handed the Mayor the keys to the gates and ex-pressed the hope that the weather might sufficiently abate for the opening and unveiling of the tablet, Aid. Fitahill said the late Mr George Bell had been an intimate friend of his for years past and when he entered Coun cil as a junior alderman he gamered much under the guidance of Ald Bell who the people recognized as a gr townsman by electing him top of th poll in two successive election 1 ras a great pleasure for him to pe form the opening ceremony on Council's behalf, as the improvements to Council's Oval which took place sev al years ago were sponsored by the late Mr. Bell, who was always extending an open financial hand to all sporting bodies

"The Pars gardens were most dear to Mr. Bell," said His Worship, "and I might say some years ago when I commenced apending the ratepsyers" money on these gardens and beautifications there was a protest and I consulted him and asked his opinion of the matter and he advised me to continue erecting these gardens, which Council did and to-day there is not one who is not proud of them."

All Aldermen, he said regretted the day when Mr. Bell retired from civic life but at the day when Mr. Bell retired from civic life, but at the time he did not altogether retire from public life for the hespital was in need of a man with Mr. Bell's capabilities and when the position was put to him he volunteered his aervices and the Höspital progressed fincly as a result of his tireiers efforts and in that matitution one could see many things which had benefited as a result of his financial assistance.

Mr. H. G. Hurrey on behalf of the points Ground Improvement committee, sincerely thanked all those who had go ably axiated to make the erection of the gates possible and expressed the whol that this kind of asalstance would continue for the committee realised they had a ground accond to noise in the country district and it was their intention to make further improvements so that some day Dubbs folk would be able to look at the grounds with pride. After the service the Mayor return-

After the service the Mayor jeturned to the fates and unveiled the tablet and officially opened them in the rain
